Schoolmen Say Nothing Official On Principal

Nothing is official. That's the latest word on rumors concerning the reassignment or resignation of Grover Pearson, Corsicana High School principal, according to six of seven school board members contacted.

Dr. John Harper said, "If anything is official we will let the news media know."

Hugh Fullerton, Jr., said, "Pearson is still the high school principal and no action has been taken."

In a telephone conversation, Pearson also told The Daily Sun that nothing is official and he has nothing to say about the matter.

Board members Raymond Hampel, Albert Sanders, Maco Stewart, and Fred Kesinger also had no comment to make to the press.

School superintendent Joe Seale and business manager Euin Frank were out of town and unavailable for comment.

Body Identified At Cedar Creek

ATHENS—Law enforcement officers here are continuing their investigation into the gangland-style slaying of a Dallas man, found late Tuesday in a trailer home near Payne Springs on Cedar Creek Lake.

The victim has been positively identified as Martin Rios, 40, an employe of the Pendley Paint and Body Shop of Dallas, said Sheriff J. W. Brownlow Thursday morning.

Officers said Wednesday that the murder was committed elsewhere, probably in Dallas County, and that the body was brought to this county for disposal. But Sheriff Brownlow said Thursday he has not satisfied himself that the killing did not occur in this area and that he was continuing his investigation with this in mind.

Brownlow and Deputy Sheriff Tom Goodell were in Dallas Wednesday evening conferring with investigators there.

The body of Rios was found lying on the hallway floor of a trailer house belonging to Arlice and Syble Davis of Dallas. The couple made the discovery as they returned home late Tuesday.

Dr. V. V. Gonzelez, Tyler pathologist, said Wednesday there were approximately 80 stab wounds, some of them inflicted after death.

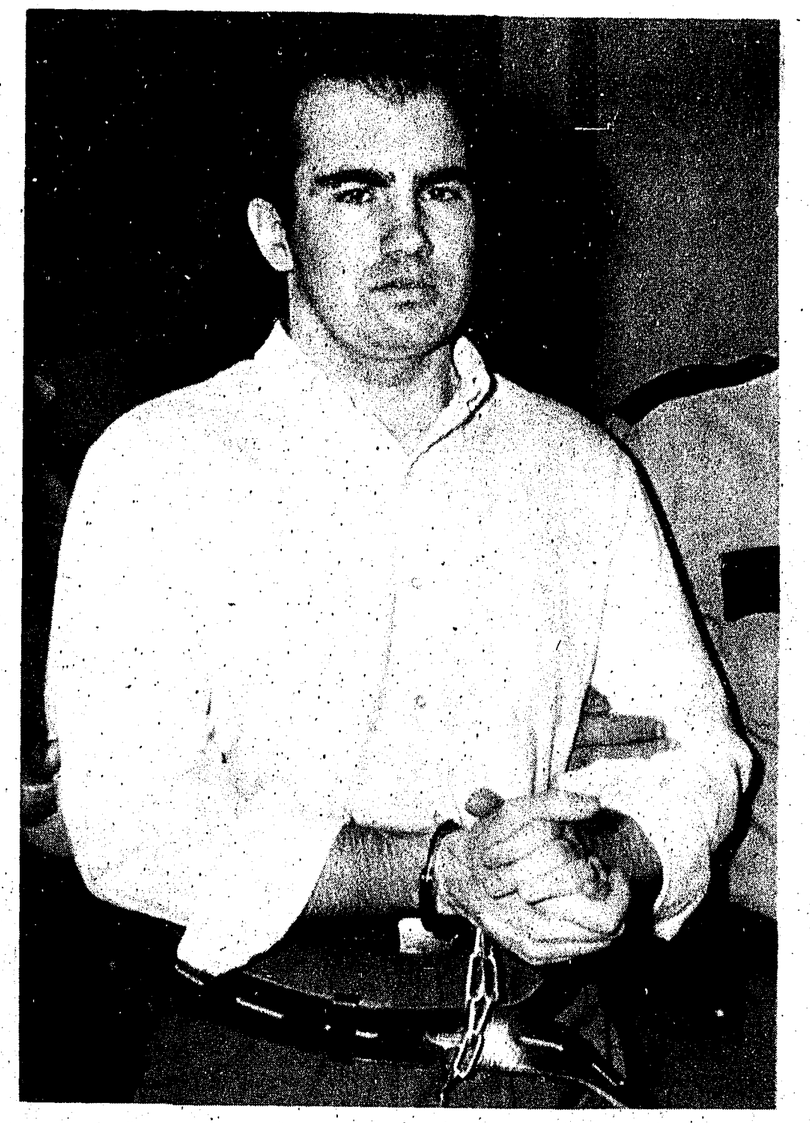

His autopsy showed that all wounds were about the upper part of the body and the face and neck.

Sources said some of the wounds appeared to have been inflicted as torture.

Sales Tax Income Up $11,000 Here

City secretary Nelda Neal announced today that the City received a total of $73,549.10 from the 1 per cent sales tax for the first quarter.

This compares to the $62,786.20 for the first quarter of last year.

Real Viet Lesson Said 'Whole Sweep'

NEW YORK (AP) — Daniel Ellsberg says the notion the secret Pentagon war study he reportedly leaked was designed to embarrass President Lyndon B. Johnson "will be quickly allayed" as the full document is made public.

Ellsberg, in his first public statement since publication of the study began, told Walter Cronkite in an interview broadcast Wednesday by CBS-TV the entire 47-volume history reveals a "sameness of policy throughout four administrations."

"The real lessons," he said, "really come from seeing the whole sweep of the history. There has never been any year when there would have been a war in Indochina without American money fueling it."

Ellsberg, former State Department and Pentagon analyst who helped assemble part of the study, was identified by a former New York Times reporter as the person who gave a copy of the secret document to The Times.

Cronkite reportedly interviewed Ellsberg in a private home in the Boston area and transmitted the film to CBS in New York through WHDH-TV, the network's Boston affiliate.

"It's really difficult to read those studies from the beginning and consecutively, and conclude that any one of those administrations would have behaved very differently than Lyndon Johnson did," Ellsberg said.

The study, which also covers the administration of Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower, "takes the issue out of politics," Ellsberg said, "and raises much more questions of whether we have been playing follow-the-leader a little too long."

He said the entire study of how the United States became more and more deeply involved in the Indochina war should be made public now rather than after American withdrawal because the threat of escalation is still U.S. policy, as it was in 1964 when Johnson planned to bomb the North.

Chicago, L.A. Papers Begin Viet Disclosures

By The Associated Press

Knight Newspapers, The Los Angeles Times and The Chicago Sun-Times have published stories about American involvement in the Vietnam war attributed at least in part to the secret Pentagon Vietnam study which the government says would threaten national security if publicly released. Washington Post and The Boston Globe remained temporarily restrained by government-won court orders from further publication of the study materials in their possession, there were these developments:

—Knight Newspapers reported that former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara proposed a coalition government for Vietnam in 1967.

—The Los Angeles Times said the National Security Council rejected in 1963 a State Department expert's recommendation that the United States pull out of Vietnam because it could not win the war against the Communists.

--The Chicago Sun-Times said President John F. Kennedy sent then Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson to Saigon in 1961 with orders to "encourage" South Vietnam to request U.S. ground troops.

The Knight articles were produced by six Knight reporters and executives for today's editions of the 11 Knight newspapers, in Detroit; Philadelphia; Miami; Charlotte, N.C.; Macon, Ga.; Tallahassee and Boca Raton, Fla.; and Akron, Ohio.

As it appeared in the Philadelphia Inquirer, the Knight story said McNamara's disenchantment with military efforts in Vietnam that he had originally recommended culminated in a May 19, 1967, proposal to President Johnson that the United States persuade Saigon to seek an accommodation with non-Communist members of the National Liberation Front—political arm of the Viet Cong.

McNamara ordered the 47-volume study of U.S. involvement in Vietnam from the end of World War II until 1967.

The article said the study showed McNamara emerging as "a tragic figure who rapidly became disillusioned with the war he had recommended."

It said McNamara recommended to President Johnson in January, 1965, "Operation Rolling Thunder," the bombing of North Vietnam which began in March 1965.

McNamara recommended increased bombing in July, 1965, and in March, 1966, the article said. But the March, 1966, proposal was "the last major escalation of the air war recommended by Secretary McNamara," the story quoted the Pentagon papers as saying.

"From mid-1966 on, McNamara is portrayed in the documents as fighting constantly with his generals and admirals," the article said. "They wanted to tighten the screws on North Vietnam while he wanted to level off or deescalate the war."

The Los Angeles Times, citing what it called previously unpublished sections of the secret report, said Paul M. Kattenburg, then head of the State Department's Vietnam Working Group, recommended in August 1963 that the United States pull out of Vietnam.

The suggestion was overruled in the National Security Council by Secretary of State Dean Rusk, the Times said.

The report on the Security Council's session on the matter is contained in a memorandum written by then Marine Marj. Gen. Victor H. Krulak, who was the Pentagon's top expert on counterinsurgency warfare, the Times said.

"It was Kattenburg's view," the Times said Krulak reported, "that (South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh) Diem will get little support from the military and, as time goes on, he will get less and less support and the country will go steadily downhill."

Congress Gets Pentagon File

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon turned the top secret Pentagon study on Vietnam over to Congress with leaders' hopes, but no promises, that more of it won't be leaked to the public.

In a scramble for access to the papers, Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., planned to press again for a House subcommittee vote today on demanding its own copy of the study for current hearings on security classification. The matter was postponed Wednesday by a 5-4 vote.

Leaders of both the House and Senate promised Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird Wednesday the documents would be kept under lock and key, though all 534 senators and House members will be able to read and study them.

Vice President Johnson supported the view of Rusk that the war was being won, the newspaper added. Johnson was described in Krulak's report as saying that "from both a practical and political viewpoint it would be a disaster to pull out, that we should stop playing cops and robbers and get back to talking straight to the GVN (Saigon government) and that we should once again go about winning the war."

"More importantly," Krulak continued, "The meeting is the first recorded occasion in which someone followed to its logical conclusion that negative analysis of the situation, that is, that the war could not be won with the Diem regime.

"Yet its removal would leave such political instability as to foreclose success in the war. For the first time it was recognized that the U.S. should be considering methods of honorably disengaging itself from an irretrievable situation."

The Sun-Times, quoting government documents, said Johnson's May 1961 trip to Saigon to encourage South Vietnam to ask for U.S. troops was followed by a letter from Diem to President Kennedy arguing that the United States should provide material support, not troops.

The Chicago paper said Diem's reasoning, according to the documents, was that the presence of U.S. soldiers would tend to give credence to the Communist charge that he was front for the colonialists.

Nixon Implicated In War, Says Thuy

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam's spokesman at the Paris peace talks accused President Nixon today of being "directly implicated" in the unleashing of the American war in Vietnam.

Xuan Thuy, Hanoi's chief delegate, told newsmen at the start of the 118th weekly session of the talks that Nixon's role in the early stages of the war emerged from the secret Pentagon papers published by The New York Times and other American newspapers.

Thuy said the Pentagon report was "only part of the truth," but it was enough to show that "President Nixon himself was directly implicated in the process of American aggression from its very beginning."

Viets Predict Red Take Over If We Leave

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — Pvt. Nguyen Huu Dinh predicts defeat for the South Vietnamese army as he scavenges discarded ammunition at a U.S. Marine garbage dump near Marble Mountain.

"When the Americans leave, the Communists will take over," he mutters. "We cannot stop them. Why are the Americans leaving?"

Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai also has qualms as he surveys enemy infiltration routes in the mist-shrouded A Shau Valley from a hilltop called Firebase Holcomb.

Privates and generals alike feel uneasy in the 1st Military Region, the five northern provinces colloquially known as Eye—for the Roman I—Corps.

No one likes sitting on a powder keg the size of Maryland.

Accelerated U.S. troop withdrawals, upcoming government elections, the end of the monsoon and 207 miles of common border with North Vietnam and enemy-controlled southern Laos made Eye Corps the likeliest target of a dry season offensive.

Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, the corps commander, feels the crunch will come in July and August. His generals and their U.S. advisers all agree on what to expect:

—Major battles involving thousands of troops in the mountainous border regions near Laos, with heavy enemy pressure on the first line of defense, a string of South Vietnamese artillery bases guarding traditional infiltration routes.

—Stepped-up shellings of cities and towns in the coastal lowlands, with sporadic forays by enemy units no larger than company size.

—Continuation of rocket attacks on Da Nang, which has been hit eight times since April 26.

—Shellings and harassing attacks against firebases along the demilitarized zone, but no large incursions across the buffer strip dividing North and South Vietnam.

—Increased terrorosim and Viet Cong political activity in the villages to prevent people from voting in the lower house election Aug. 29 and the presidential election Oct. 3.

5 Years Assessed In Murder Case

Odis Johnson pleaded nolo contrendre in 13th District Court this morning to charges of murder with malice and received a five-year probated sentence from the jury.

Johnson was charged with the Nov. 7, 1970, shooting death of James Stern in Corsicana.

Jury selections were made Tuesday and the trial was to begin at 9 a.m. today. The jury returned the guilty verdict at mid-morning after Johnson entered his plea of nolo contrendre.

'13 Class Pin Search Finds All but Owner

By BETTY JEAN CLAY
Sun Staff Writer

A long-lost Corsicana High School pin more than a half century old is "going back home" to CHS, but its original owner remains a mystery.

Found recently in Mexia, the class pin was sent to The Daily Sun to see if its original owner could be traced. If not, it was to be presented to the school as another historic memento that would have sentimental value. Had it turned up sooner, it might well have gone into a "time capsule" buried with the cornerstone of the modern, comprehensive high school which has just completed its first year west of town off Hwy 22.

But, that's getting ahead of the story and some of the research that has been done since the pin reached The Daily Sun.

For a good many years, it has been a habit of Corsicanans who find lot articles to turn them in to the newspaper. It was long a practice of the newspaper to try to get the lost property back to the original owner. A convenient way that was satisfactory to the "finder" and the "loser" who came forth to claim the item was for the newspaper to insert a notice in the lost and found column.

Generally, it read something like this: "Found-Key ring, five assorted keys, including car and house, in front of picture show. Loser can claim same at Daily Sun building by paying for this ad."

Over the years, The Daily Sun collected an odd assortment of lost articles and, at the same time, through this means, was helpful in returning many.

"Since we've moved over here to our new building we don't get many lost articles turned in any more," Wilson Griffin, Daily Sun business manager, said. "I guess as long as we were next to the Post Office we got more lost things because it was more convenient for people already downtown to stop by and turn them in."

It was on this premise that Mrs. Nettie Sutton of Mexia sent to the Daily Sun the shiny gold pin, shield-shaped enscribed CHS '13 with the initials EEC. It had been unearthed while she was working in her flower bed, digging deep down. Its physical condition was almost "mint new" indicative that it had lain buried for many years.

At the time the pin was sent here, it was unknown whether it actually was a Corsicana High School pin, but the proximity of Mexia to Corsicana was a natural assumption it could be, and, besides, her sister just happened to be visiting her from Corsicana when she remembered finding it.

Several telephone calls to some old-timers inquiring about whether the high school ever had a class pin evoked rather hazy recollection.

Trying another tack, a reporter went to the School Administration office, fully realizing no one connected with the system today was likely to have been around in 1913. But records are kept of all the graduates of the high school through the four buildings that have housed CHS since the turn of the 20th Century.

Cooperative office workers thumbed through the list of graduates in search of a name that would match three initials scratched on the back of the pin. No name matched, and records did not indicate that Corsicana High had ever used a pin.

Still being helpful, the office attendants spotted the name of Mrs. R. R. Cocke, the former Lillian Chaney, and a member of the 1913 class. Maybe she could shed some light on the situation.

She was called and at first had no recollection that class pins

Trying New Brigade Uniform

Brigade Half-way To Uniforms

By NELL FISCHER
Staff Writer

When the Blue and Gold Brigade of Corsicana High School was organized in 1965, it's primary function was to "cheer the team on" as a pep squad of about 63 girls.

Today, the number is almost the same, but the activities are different.

The girls not only sit in a block in the stands, do hand routines, and lead the cheering section; they also perform field drills during football halftime festivities and sit in on basketball games.

With the new activities, the girls decided this spring to try to get new uniforms for the group.

After much discussion and debate, they decided on a "cowboy-style uniform" made of shiny water-repellent fabric. It is finished with white boots, a white hat with blue trim, white wrist guards and a white waist belt.

However, the girls encountered the old problem—money. Each uniform would cost $40—without the boots.

The girls decided each of the 43 members would purchase her own boots and put $15 toward the uniform's purchase.

That left $1,755 needed, so the girls decided to raise money through personal contacts throughout the community.

The girls have contacted almost every service club and several businesses and individuals. They have collected a total of "about $900," including the amount that they put in themselves.

"We're almost half-way," said one leader, Kathy Stephenson, "but the last half will be the hardest."

The girls have signed a contract with Mrs. Ann Gallagher of Dallas, who has made uniforms for several leading cheerleader teams such as the Dallas Cowboys and Southern Methodist University cheerleaders.

Texas Miller is making the hats, and the girls are furnishing their own boots.

The girls are faced with still another problem, that of a sponsor. The group has had several sponsors in the six years it has been organized, but none have stayed with the group.

Once again without a sponsor, many of the girls' parents are backing them.

But the girls themselves have done much for the cause in addition to raising money for uniforms.

They have set rules for membership, including tryouts for initial joining and weekly tryouts for the weekly routines, making certain that all members know the drills. Now they feel the olny thing they need are the new uniforms.

Those who have contributed to the fund include State National Bank, A. W. Norris, Jim Stephenson, Dr. and Mrs. John Barnes, Miss Abbie Dickinson, and J. D. Moore.

Others are Robert Gladney, Corsicana National Bank, E. A. Forster, Jr., Nelson Plumbing Co., Henry Bowden and R. W. Smith.

Those wishing to add to the fund may do so by contacting Mrs. Jo Ann McNabb of CHS. Checks are to be made out to the Blue and Gold Brigade Uniform fund.

Art Talk:

Art Exhibit Brings Cultural Atmosphere

By SAM PENDERGRAST
Editor of The Sun

Culture came to Corsicana Sunday afternoon on cowboy boots as some 250 to 300 area art fans, Father's Day sightseers and casual visitors helped open a week-long art exhibit at the State National Bank during the afternoon reception.

The Artist is H. C. Zachry of Abilene, Tex., who was present with his wife and young son, Hank, for the unveiling of 32 oil paintings, serigraphs, pencil works, pastels, a few of the watercolors for which Zachry was first known in West Texas, and a series of signed, numbered prints being shown here for the first time.

State National President Chester Sprinkle, Vice-President Rogers Ray, and Chairman of the Board Charles Hooser headed up the list of State National staff members welcoming guests, who milled among the paintings comparing media, discussing styles and bending forward to check the price of favorite works.

Zachry has been billed as a western artist, and some of his most popular subjects have been the livestock, equipment, architecture, pastureland, and the earthy wranglers of the modern ranch life he learned intimately as a boy on a Red River area ranch and later as a championship rodeo cowboy.

A moody depiction of a tired horse "heading for water" and an unusual back view of a ranch hand in chaps were two of the earliest works to gather "sold" labels Sunday, and two other "horseflesh" pictures were among the most talked about: a pastel of a broken-down saddle horse, and a large oil of two young cowboys riding homeward through darkening shadows of evening.

Most of the interesting serigraphs (also known as "silk-screens") deal with horses, and various portrait studies of cowboys in pencil, pastels, and oils round out the "Bonanza" corner of the exhibit.

But Zachry is, first and foremost, a representationalist artist interested in appealing subject matter anywhere, and many viewers were probably surprised to find that about half of the exhibit was made up of more lush landscapes than can often be found in West Texas. There were even a number of specific Corsicana area locales. (Actually, Zachry made a trip to study this area last month after the exhibit was arranged at State National.)

One of the most popular woks in the show is a view of an abandoned wooden drilling rig, a trio of white-faced Herefords grazes in vegetation that looks like East Texas in moister years, and there are at least three landscapes with expansive oaks amid bluebonnet blankets rare out West.

Specific sites recognized by area visitors included a farmhouse north of Corsicana and an old barn near Dublin.

Zachry is noted for his detail as well as a wealth of subtle suggestion apparently learned in his watercolor days, and there were frequent gasps of delight by viewers who discovered fillips, such as a dove perched on a barbed-wire fence not apparent at first glance but rendering the work "something you could live with".

A number of the paintings were sold during Sunday's reception, but all of the works will remain on display throughout the week, according to Bank President Sprinkle, who has invited all area citizens to drop by and see the exhibit.

Ten per cent of all sales will be donated to the Corsicana United Fund.

Sunday School Lesson

JUSTICE, MERCY AND HUMILITY LIE AT BASIS OF ALL TRUTH

Sincere Effort to Improve One's Life and Help Others is Basic - World Cries Out for Better Living and Fair Dealing - Today an Era of Privilege for All

The Sunday School Lesson for June 27 is entitled "God Requires Personal Righteousness." Micah 6:1-4, 6-8. (Copyright by the International Council of Religious Education, New York, N.Y.(

By EARL L. Douglass

"He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

We reminded ourselves in the analysis of last week's lesson that this brief statement, written by one of the so-called Minor Prophets, Micah, could be said to be one of the most effective statements of truth found in the entire Bible. Micah appears to have been a contemporary of the Major Prophet, Isaiah, who prophesied in the Southern Kingdom. Also, Micah set forth his message at the same time the Prophets Amos and Hosea in the Northern Kingdom. Courtroom scenes are popular today as television features. The Prophet Micah declares that the Lord has a controversy with his people.

STERN REQUIREMENTS

Here is a courtroom scene enacted many centuries ago. It forms the basis of the International Sunday School lesson for June 27. The topic of this lesson is "God Requires Personal Righeousness."

It is almost incredible that people should find it hard to believe that personal righteousness, every day goodness, is an essential part of a sincere religious life. One of the greatest mistakes made by so-called "religious people" has been the assumption that since we are saved by faith, then faith is the only factor needed to make one sincerely religious.

Important as faith is, it is not the only factor in a truly religious life. We must practice what we believe. There is no sound religious life without personal righteousness (a sincere attempt to be honest, decent, generous in our dealings with our fellowmen). "Faith without works is dead" (James 2:17).

This is a pretty bad world in which we live, but don't let us make it worse than it is. The world is not hopeless. You may have met or heard of someone who according to all standards of decency, honesty and generosity is a thoroughly bad person. Most of us never encountered such a person and we do not expect to encounter such a person in the future.

Religious faith is not enough. It is essential but not sufficient. If we want to please the Lord and have the respect of our fellows (and best of all, our own self-respect), we must keep on trying to become better people ourselves and help others to do the same. The late Winston Churchill used to include three words in practically every one of his public utterances: "Never give up, never give up, never give up."

SEVEN SENTENCE SERMONS

Is heavy taxation the most fatal of all pollution?

God looks down from heaven upon the sons of men, to see if there be any that are wise and seek after God.

—Psalms 53:2

Those who have lamps must pass them on to others.

—Plato

No man is born into the world whose work is not born with him.

—Lowell

Christianity is the companion of all liberty.

—De Tocqueville

Real glory springs from the silent conquest of self.

Bear one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ.

—Galatians 6:2

★ Aunt Louise ★

I cut the following anonymous prayer out of a newspaper many years ago when the twins were very small. It is now yellow with age. When they started to school at the age of six they were very small in size and weight. They chose to participate in sports and their disappointments were NOT few or far between. When the going got really rough and they'd come home looking sad because they didn't get to bat, had to sit on the bench, fumbled the ball when they did get their chance, or their team was "skunked", I'd dig THE PRAYER out of my desk and read it to them and somehow it always seemed to help. Today is Father's Day and sons do have a habit of growing up to be fathers. I thought it appropriate to use the poem in my column and dedicate it to all fathers, of all colors, sizes and faiths. Maybe you too, will find a time that it will come in handy to read to your son. Come to think about it, it helps mothers too!

"The Prayer of a Game Guy." Dear God, help me to be a sport in this little game of life. I don't ask for an easy place in the lineup; play me anywhere You need me. I only ask for the stuff to give You 100 per cent of what I've got. If all the hard drives seem to come my way, I thank You for the compliment.

Help me to remember that You won't ever let anything come my way that You and I together can't handle. And help me to take the bad breaks as part of the game.

Help me to understand that the game is full of knots and knocks and trouble and make me thankful for them. Help me to get so the harder they come the better I like it.

And, O God, help me to always play on the square. No matter what the other players do, help me to come clean. Help me to study the Book so that I'll know the rules, and to study great players. If they found out that the best part of the game was helping other guys who were out of luck, help me to find it out too. Help me to be a regular fellow with the other players.

Finally, O God, if fate seems to uppercut me with both hands and I'm laid on the shelf in sickness or old age or something, help me to take that as part of the game too. Help me not to whimper or squeal that the game was a frameup or that I got a raw deal.

When in the falling dusk, I get the final bell, I ask for no lying complimentary stones. I'd like to know that You feel that I've been a good, game guy. Amen.

'Bye for now. See you in Thursday's Daily Sun. Hope to hear from YOU by then.

Sales Manager Alvin Holley returned to work Monday from a week's vacation wearing a very becoming tan and a sparkle in his eyes and looking very rested. His first remark to me: "I didn't catch any fish." Now that's too bad!

I hadn't been fishing since I caught THE WHOPPER. Saturday afternoon, Dolly, Joe Jameson and I decided to try our luck. After buying minnows at Sparkman's Bait House we headed for the lake.

I had in my tackle box the bottle of Worm Scent Fish Lure that L. S. Cooper had given me. I decided to try it and not let Dolly know I was using it. After catching a half dozen or so bass I got tickled and told her I was using it. At first she seemed aggravated but then agreed with me if we both had been using it that we wouldn't have known if the fish were just biting or if the Worm Scent really worked.

Anyway, she started putting it on her hook and she too started catching fish. We both wound up with 21 better than average KEEPERS, all bass. THAT'S A TRUE STORY!

Ellis Slaughter, ad compositor, who just returned to work from his vacation, asked me what I did with the fish. I told him it was nearly dark when we quit fishing. We were both tired and didn't want to clean them so we threw them back in the lake. He said next time to bring them to him and his wife, they would rather eat them than catch them. That I will do if there is a next time. I like to eat fish but I sure do dread the job of cleaning them.

Stopped in Olsen Feed & Seed Monday and learned that Bill was on the "sick list". Sorry about that. But I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. and Mrs. Clyde (Dolly) Hollingsworth of Barry. The Hollingsworths live on a farm and while Dolly was buying his supplies Mrs. Hollingsworth and I had a nice chat. Of course, children are always a mutual topic of conversation, so we swapped stories.

While in Safeway Grocery waiting for Benny Joe (He is a busy man), Mrs. Willie Rascoe walked up to me and introduced herself. We too had a delightful conversation. Willie's daughter, Elizabeth, and her husband, Bill Onstott, own and operate the B & E Restaurant in Malone. Incidentally, that reminds me that Elizabeth invited me over some Wednesday or Thursday night for a fish dinner ... all you can eat on these nights for a more than reasonable price. I took a rain-check and haven't been. I must go. I haven't forgotten that home-made chocolate pie I had the last time the boss sent me to Malone.

Wishful thinking: Why doesn't the boss send me to the coast so I can catch a speckled trout? You can bet if I were lucky enough to catch one I wouldn't throw him back in the water.

While at the Tax Assessor and Collector's office in the Courthouse the other day waiting on Letha Keathley to fill out a change of title for me, I spent the time reading some quotes they had posted on the counter.

Examples:

"A rumor is about as hard to unspread as butter."

"Isn't life wonderful; I wouldn't live without it."

"If you're looking for a helping hand, try using that thing on the end of your arm."

Hope Springs Eternal: "After the protesters have succeeded in abolishing war, maybe they'll go to work on DEATH and TAXES." S. S. Biddle.

SWIMMING

Don't swim alone. There's safety in numbers.

Don't swim from boats-use beaches.

Look before you leap. Be sure water is deep enough before diving.

Know your own strength. Don't overestimate your swimming ability.

Mind your manners. Mischievous acts or pranks might cause a tragedy. HORSE PLAY AND OVER-CONFICENCE COST LIVES!

Don't you think it's about time YOU wrote to 'ole Aunt Louise? I do. A card or letter would please me so very much. How about it?

See you in Sunday's Daily Sun.

Wood, Welding Classes Slated

General woodworking and general welding will be offered beginning June 28 at Navarro Junior College in the shop building of the Technical Arts Center.

The first course will be to instruct students in basic woodworking procedures including use of all power woodworking equipment. Students will be permitted to build projects of their choice. The course will be taught by Ralph Vaughn.

Purpose of the general welding course is to develop ability in electric arc welding and oxy-acetylene welding and cutting. Students will be allowed to build projects requiring welding skills.

The courses will be at 7 p.m. on Monday and Wednesday evenings June 28 through Aug. 18. There will be 16 class meetings with 48 instructional hours.

Tuition is $30 per student.

New Classes Offered

Two new classes will be offered beginning Monday for teenagers at the Manpower Training Center, announced Guy Rushing, coordinator and educational director.

The first class, which will be for boys aged 14-19, is a handyman's course. Glen Sholle will teach the boys in the classroom, shop and on the job from 8 a.m. to noon for five days.

A general office and receptionist class will be offered for both girls and boys from 7-9 p.m. Monday through Thursday for two weeks. This course, said Rushing, is for persons trying to complete a high school degree.

He added that the center is trying to find enough interest for another cash register class.

"These courses," he noted, "keep the students mindful of working responsibilities and of things they need to know to keep a job."

Old Biography Turns Conversation Piece

By MIKE MONTFORT

Mrs. Billie Coates on North Highway 75 thinks she possesses the first complete story of George Washington which she says has been in her family for a number of generations, and she cannot tell a lie!

The book, entitled "The Illustrated Life Of Washington", contains vivid plate print pictures of battles, trials and triumphs of the Revolutionary eras. Also included in the book are full-color views and maps of the Mount Vernon Estate and Washington's Tomb. This historic and informative account is compiled by Judge Joel T. Headley, who derived the details of Washington from the papers of General Rufus Putnam's diary, which amplifies the description of life in those war-torn times, obscure proclamations and documents, and Washington's personal letters during the passing stages of the Revolution.

The composer of these intriguing and sometimes conflicting facts, Joel Headley, was a popular historian and biographer of New York who wrote other books on George Washington and Napoleon. At one time he was an associate editor of the New York Tribune under Horace Greeley.

Mrs. Coates asserts that the informative relic was actually a handed down possession of her great grandmother. Her uncle inherited the book and at his death fifteen years ago, Mrs. Coates acquired it. Although the book is in a worn and decrepit condition due to its excessive age, every page and picture are still in the book, intact and legible. Dates entered in the book by family pen refer back to 1860, according to Mrs. Coates.

Chapter One of the book includes intricate details of the early life of Washington, his ancestry, and his early studies and surveying interests. The book continues directly into Washington's battles, among the importantly detailed ones being those at Trenton, Fort Duquesne, Charleston and Valley Forge.

Toward the middle chapters of the volume, Washington is displayed as the responsible leader at Philadelphia and Virginia, and his military strategies and decisions as a President were revealed. Among the personal details helping to close the book are his will and the description of his climactic illness. (He died of pneumonia.)

First in War, First in Peace..

Mrs. Billie Coates pauses to read the 'family heirloom', a complete story of the life of Washington. Family writings in the book date back to 1860. (Sun Staff Photo by Nell Fischer)

STREETMAN

Streetman—Fifty two friends and relatives met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Robinson Sunday, to honor Mr. Robinson on his 83rd birthday. Their eight children were present and five generations were represented. They came from Tennessee, Fort Worth, Dallas, Greenville, Tyler, Waco and Fairfield.

Mrs. Houston Foster of Kingsville is spending the week with her mother, Mrs. Hugh Burleson.

Guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. McGilvary last week included Mr. and Mrs. James Whatley and family of Vernon; Bud Whatley of White Oak; Phil Whatley, on leave from the Navy; and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Knotts of Gatesville.

Mrs. Clyde Ellis of Sweeney spent last week with Mrs. Bette Miligan. Other visitors were Mrs. Wilton LaRue of Houston and Mrs. Neal Brown of Richland.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Anderson of Irving visited their mother, Mrs. Arra Anderson Sunday and attended the Midway Memorial.

Mrs. Eddie Chamberlain of Fort Worth visited the Lloyd Robinsons Tuesday. Tim returned home with his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Lee's grandchildren, Karen and Kevin of Mesquite, spent the week with them and attended Vacation Bible School at the Baptist church here.

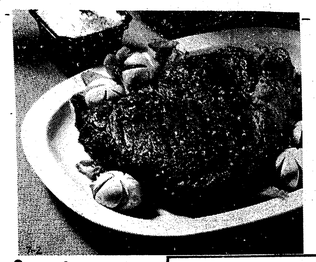

Pickett Club Sets Work Schedules

The Pickett Riding Club met in regular session June 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the Club arena. Jimmy McCamey presided in the absence of the president.

Plans were made for an ice cream supper on June 25 at 8 p.m. Members were asked to contribute homemade ice cream or cake.

June 21 and 22 were designated as work nights. Club members are asked to donate one or both evenings to grass mowing, painting, carpentry or other chores that are necessary in maintenance care of the grounds and concession stand.

Easy Summer Meals Can Have Exotic Flair

KOREAN STEAK

¾ cup maple-blended syrup
½ cup soy sauce
¼ cup vinegar
2 tablespoons freeze-dried chives
½ teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons toasted sesame seed
2 tablespoons oil
3 pieces candied ginger
1½-inch-thick top sirloin steak, trimmed (about 1½ to 2 pounds)

Combine first 10 ingredients. Slash edge of steak to prevent curling; pierce both sides of meat with fork. Place in syrup mixture, turning to coat both sides. Cover; refrigerate at least 2 hours, turning meat once. Remove from refrigerator and let stand at room temperature 30 minutes before cooking. Cook on preheated barbecue grill or in preheated broiler about 5 inches from source of heat 8 to 10 minutes per side for medium doneness.

Marinade may be refrigerated and re-used.

Biscuits, shaped as buttery fan-tans are great with tangy Korean Steak. Here are:

BISCUIT FAN-TANS

½ cup enriched corn meal
1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
¾ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon baking powder
½ cup shortening
¾ cup milk
Melted butter or margarine

Heat oven to 425°F. Sift together first 4 ingredients. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add milk, stirring lightly just until dry ingredients are dampened.

Turn out on well floured board or canvas; knead gently 10 times. Roll out to 15x12-inch rectangle. Brush with melted butter. Cut into six 12-inch-long strips. Stack strips evenly on top of one another. Cut into 1-inch pieces.

Place each piece, cut side up, in greased medium-sized muffin cups; brush tops with melted butter. Separate cut edge of layers with tip of knife for prettier fan-tans.

Bake 15 to 20 minutes or until golden brown in 425°F. oven. Makes 12 fan-tans.

Cookies are always good picnic fare and fudgy "no-bakes" are special.

FUDGE PICNIC CHEWS

1¼ cups sugar
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup cocoa
½ cup light corn syrup
½ cup butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup coarsely chopped salted peanuts
2 cups quick or old-fashioned oats, uncooked

Combine first 5 ingredients in medium-sized saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Continue cooking to 236°F., or until syrup dropped in cold water forms a soft ball. Remove from heat. Add butter and vanilla, stirring until butter is melted. Stir in peanuts and oats. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto lightly greased cookie sheet. Chill.

Makes 24 chewy, tasty "no-bake" goodies.

Many a Dish Owes Interest to Mushroom

THE MUSHROOM is a magic munchable, with its pleasing texture, delightful flavor and low, low calorie content. Light as they are, a pound of mushrooms makes a fine bowlful, lots of nice nibbling.

Fresh mushrooms are a real convenience food, and this goes in spades for the canned product.

If fresh, rinse mushrooms briefly in clear water, just a couple of dunks will do. If they are to be sautéed, pat them dry. Otherwise, just place in colander to drain. In any case, don't peel mushrooms. If the base of the stem looks a little dry or bruised, trim away a thin slice.

If canned mushrooms are used in a sauté recipe, again, pat dry. Frozen mushrooms need no more attention than the canned variety.

MUSHROOM SHRIMP SUKIYAKI

¾ pound fresh mushrooms or 2 cans (6 to 8 ounces each) sliced mushrooms
¼ cup salad oil
2 cups sliced celery
2 large green peppers, sliced
2 large onions, sliced in rings
½ cup beef broth or water
½ cup soy sauce
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon sherry
1 package (1 pound) frozen, peeled and deveined shrimp
Hot cooked rice

Slice fresh mushrooms (makes 3¾ cups) or drain canned mushrooms; set aside.

In a large skillet, heat oil. Add next 3 ingredients. Sauté until onions are pale gold, about 5 minutes.

Combine next 4 ingredients; gradually add to sautéed vegetables. Bring to boiling point. Add reserved mushrooms and shrimp. Return to boil; reduce heat and simmer 8 to 10 minutes longer or until shrimp turn pink. If desired, thicken sauce with tablespoon cornstarch blended with tablespoon water. Blend into mixture and cook until clear and slightly thickened, stirring.

Serve with hot cooked rice. Serves 6.

MUSHROOM LOVEBURGERS

1 pound fresh mushrooms or 1 can (6 to 8 ounces) mushroom stems and pieces
1 can (3 to 4 ounces) whole mushrooms
1½ pounds ground lean beef
2 teaspoons chili powder
1½ teaspoons salt
1 large onion, cut into 8 slices
8 thin slices (diet-sliced) bread, toasted
½ cup catsup

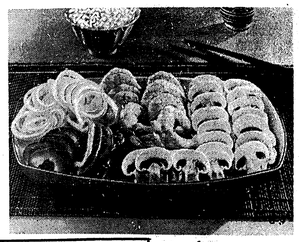

Rinse and pat fresh mushrooms dry, or drain canned variety. Reserve 8 fresh or canned whole mushrooms, with stems removed, for garnish.

Chop remaining fresh mushrooms. In a large mixing bowl, combine chopped fresh mushrooms or canned stems and pieces with beef, chili powder and salt; mix well, but do not overmix. Shape mixture into 8 patties.

Place on rack in broiler pan. Broil 7 inches from heat source until done as desired, about 5 minutes each side, turning once.

Top each patty with an onion slice and whole mushroom, fresh or canned, cavity side up. Broil about 4 minutes longer. Serve on toast. Spoon 1 tablespoon catsup into each mushroom cap.

Each serving counts as 182 calories, which isn't much for a superb burger dish.

Sweet...

...and sour marinade of maple-blended syrup, vinegar, soy sauce, and sesame seed makes an exotic tender steak.

Or Change Bread into Sandwiches

THERE'S one hero that's a good and kind conqueror and that's the hero sandwich. Whether it's a plain old back yard bash, a family reunion, or a party for young folk, a giant, mouth-watering, over-stuffed sandwich will disappear at lightning speed.

The long crusty loaf of bread—sliced lengthwise and heaped with layers of cold meats, cheese, sweet onion, and as a real bonus, crunchy kraut, is indeed a treat. It's easily prepared and served without fuss or bother. It's a long way from the Earl of Sandwich's gaming table to the Grinders, Poor Boys, Submarines and Dagwoods that are relished today.

HERO KRAUTWICH

2 cups well-drained sauerkraut
½ cup sour cream
1 tablespoon chopped chives
¼ teaspoon dill weed
15-inch loaf of Italian bread, halved lengthwise and buttered
Romaine lettuce
4 slices sweet onion
¼ pound sliced liverwurst
3 large rectangular slices Swiss cheese, halved
½ pound sliced bologna
1 medium tomato, thinly sliced

Mix kraut with sour cream, chives and dill; chill. On bottom half of bread, layer remaining ingredients, then kraut mixture. Cover with top half of bread. Hold together with picks.

Makes 6 to 8 servings. Another time, serve:

ZIPPY KRAUT-CORNED BEEF HEROES

2 cups well-drained kraut
½ cup sour cream
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
Dash pepper
Boston lettuce
1 package (3 ounces) sliced, chopped pressed corned beef
½ pound sliced luncheon meat
½ pound Swiss cheese
6 hero rolls, 7 inches long, split and buttered
Small sweet gherkins

Combine first 5 ingredients; toss and chill. On bottom halves of rolls, layer the lettuce, corned beef, luncheon meat, kraut mixture (½ cup for each) and cheese. Cover with top halves of rolls. Secure with wooden picks, garnished with gherkins.

For the ultimate hero, it's:

HOT KRAUT AND HAM HERO

2 cups well-drained kraut
1 teaspoon oregano leaves
Mayonnaise
½ pound sliced ham
1 medium green pepper, cut in thin strips
½ pound sliced Muenster cheese
6 hero rolls, 6 inches long, split

Combine sauerkraut, oregano and ¼ cup mayonnaise; toss lightly and chill. Spread bottoms and tops of rolls with mayonnaise. Layer ham, green pepper and kraut mixture on bottom halves of rolls. Cover with cheese and top halves of rolls.

Wrap each sandwich individually in aluminum foil. Bake in 350°F. oven 20 minutes or place on charcoal grill 7-inches from coals and cook 10 minutes. Turn and cook 10 minutes longer. Serve nice and hot. Good!

TUPELO

Recent visitors in the home of Mrs. A. B. Smith were Mr. and Mrs. Deno Tufares, Terri and Susie, and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Dickens and children, all of Wichita Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Billy Smith, David and Melonie of Odessa. David Smith and Susie Tufares remained with their grandmother for a longer visit.

Fruit Finds New Main Course Spot

NOTHING like timing to strike it right. And it's certainly the right time to prepare a delectable dish — an omelet with strawberries and sour cream. A nice number, indeed to star at a dessert party. The recipe given is for 1 to 2 servings and is best made in small batches, since it takes but 5 minutes to prepare.

STRAWBERRIES AND CREAM OMELET

3 eggs
1 tablespoon water
1 tablespoon sugar
⅜ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
¼ cup fresh strawberries, sliced and sugared
2 tablespoons sour cream
2 tablespoons powdered sugar
Whole sugared strawberries for garnish

Mix first 4 ingredients with a fork.

Heat butter in an 8-inch omelet pan or skillet, just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water.

Pour in egg mixture. It should set at edges at once. Reduce heat slightly but cook eggs quickly. As the mixture at the edges thickens, draw these portions with a fork toward the center so that the uncooked portions flow to the bottom. Tilt the skillet as is necessary to hasten flow of uncooked eggs. Shake skillet to keep omelet sliding freely. Keep mixture as level as possible.

When eggs are set and surface is still moist, increase heat to brown bottom quickly. When bottom is brown, place sliced strawberries on one half of omelet. Fold and slip onto serving plate.

Spread sour cream over top of folded omelet and sprinkle with powdered sugar. If desired, place omelet under broiler to set sour cream.

Garnish with berries and serve at once.

As a variation, there's

PEACHES AND CREAM OMELET

2 eggs
2 tablespoons water
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon butter
1 1-pound can sliced cling peaches, well drained
¼ cup sour cream

Mix eggs and water with a fork. Cook according to directions given above. To serve, spread half of sour cream on omelet. Place peach slices on omelet. Fold in half. Spread remaining sour cream on top. Garnish with a few peach slices. Makes 1 serving.

One can of peaches is enough for 2 or 3 omelets.

A reader kindly shares with this column, her recipe for scrambled eggs, which she says is a beautiful brunch treat.

SCRAMBLED EGGS, BRUNCH STYLE

1 avocado
Salt
8 eggs
½ cup dairy sour cream
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon butter

Cut avocado in half; remove skin and seed. Cube the fruit and sprinkle with salt.

Beat eggs with next 5 ingredients. Melt butter in a skillet, add the egg mixture and cook over low flame stirring occasionally.

When almost set, add the cubed avocado and fold in carefully. Serves 4 to 6.

Make Summer Meals Light and Refreshing

A PITCHER of frosty tea is the perfect companion for a shrimp and scallop salad with lemon-caper mayonnaise.

By ALICE DENHOFF

SUMMERTIME — and it's iced tea and salad time. Big refreshing salads are tempting to the eye and to heat-jaded palates; and they're appealing to the family chef because they free her from last minute cooking. A good main dish salad can be prepared early in the day, refrigerated until needed, then quickly assembled with greens. Serve with hot biscuits and iced tea for a pleasing hot weather collation.

Wonderful iced tea, with its pale amber color, is also an eye-pleaser. It goes well with any meal and is especially compatible with summery salads.

To prepare two quarts — enough for 10 servings—bring 1 quart of freshly drawn cold water to a full rolling boil in a kettle or saucepan. Remove from heat and immediately add ⅓ measuring cup loose tea or 15 teabags. Stir, cover and let stand 5 minutes. Stir again and strain into a pitcher holding another quart of cold water. Hold at room temperature until ready to serve. Then pour into ice-filled glasses and serve with lemon and sugar to taste.

Excellent iced tea can also be made with the convenient instant tea powder or the lemon-flavored, pre-sweetened iced tea mix.

SEAFOOD SALAD

1 pound medium-sized shrimp
1 pound scallops
¼ cup lemon juice
¾ cup salad oil
⅛ teaspoon dry dill weed
⅛ teaspoon dry thyme
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon cider vinegar
2 dashes Tabasco sauce
1 medium head lettuce, shredded
Parsley sprigs
Lemon-Caper Mayonnaise

Cook shrimp in salted water. Shell and devein.

Poach scallops in simmering salted water. (If sea scallops are used, cut in quarters.) Combine next 7 ingredients to make a marinade. Pour half over the shrimp, half over the scallops. Cover both and refrigerate at least an hour.

When ready to serve, drain well. Put shredded lettuce in a shallow salad bowl. Arrange scallops in the center and the shrimp around edge of bowl. Garnish with parsley sprigs and serve with:

LEMON-CAPER MAYONNAISE

½ cup mayonnaise
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon drained capers

Stir all together and refrigerate until needed.

With the salad, serve:

TEA BISCUITS

2 teaspoons instant tea
¾ cup water
2 cups biscuit mix
2 tablespoons melted butter

Dissolve tea in water. Add all at once to biscuit mix. Beat with fork until stiff, about 15 minutes. Roll dough around on board lightly floured with biscuit mix. Knead gently 8 to 10 times. Roll to about ¼-inch thickness. Brush with melted butter and fold once. Dip 2-inch cutter in biscuit mix and cut dough rounds. Place on ungreased cooky sheet about 1 inch apart. Bake on middle shelf in 425°F. oven for 8 to 10 minutes or until done.

Oregano, the Pizza Herb, Gives Dishes Pizzazz

By ALICE DENHOFF

ABOUT a quarter of a century ago, we started to hear more and more about something called o-reg-ano, or as many called it, ore-gan-o. At first it was just an off-trail herb that had its place in Italian dishes, but gradually, it took over in ever so many dishes.

Today, the newcomer is firmly established in the top 10 of the spice hit parade, according to spice importers. That's because it's so good. It adds gusto to a lot of dishes that otherwise might be on the bland side.

Oregano, incidentally, is Spanish for wild marjoram and is actually a member of the marjoram family. Its flavor is a kind of cross between sage and marjoram. Of course, it is THE herb for pizza. Pizza just wouldn't be pizza without a pinch of lively oregano.

Try this aromatic herb in some of your favorite dishes, but play it safe and subtle for it isn't meant to cover up a food's basic flavor. Wherever possible, add oregano and other herbs toward the end of the cooking process to enjoy the full flavor.

BROILED MACKEREL

2 tablespoons olive or salad oil
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon oregano leaves
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
6 ready-to-cook mackerel, about ¾ pound each

Combine first 5 ingredients. Pour over fish and marinate 2 or more hours.

Broil mackerel 7 minutes on each side, basting with marinade.

ITALIAN SPAGHETTI PEPPERONI

½ pound pepperoni sausage
½ pound ground beef
1 can (1 pound 12 ounces) tomatoes
1 can (7 ounces) tomato puree
1 cup water
2 tablespoons instant minced onion
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon oregano leaves, crumbled
1 teaspoon chili powder
½ teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon instant garlic powder
2 tablespoons parsley flakes
1 can (8 ounces) sliced mushrooms
1 pound spaghetti, cooked
Grated Parmesan cheese

Chop pepperoni sausage fine and heat 5 minutes in 9-inch skillet. Add ground beef and cook until browned.

Add next 5 ingredients. Simmer 20 minutes or until thickened. Stir in seasonings and mushrooms. Cook 5 minutes.

Serve on hot cooked spaghetti. Sprinkle with grated Parmesan, if desired.

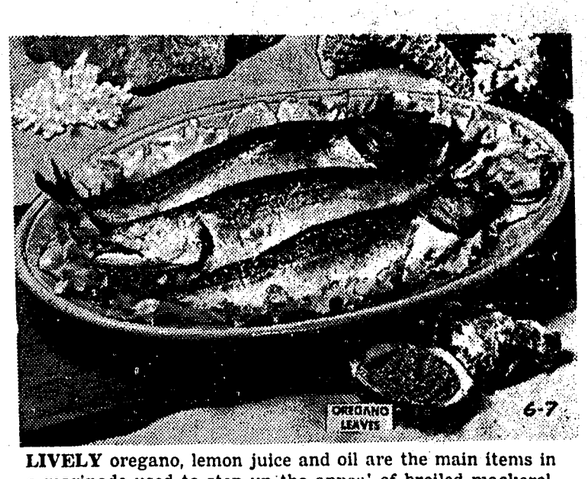

Serves 8 to 10 and is a fine supper buffet selection.

For a vegetable special, serve:

HERBED CREOLE CABBAGE

1¾ pounds (1 medium head) cabbage
½ inch boiling water
2 teaspoons minced onion
1 cup chopped green pepper
¾ teaspoon crumbled oregano leaves
2½ teaspoons salt
1½ teaspoons sugar
2 teaspoons lemon juice

Shred cabbage; cook, covered, 10 minutes in boiling water. Add next 3 ingredients. Simmer, uncovered, 15 minutes. Drain cabbage if necessary. Add remaining ingredients. Serve piping hot.

LIVELY oregano, lemon juice and oil are the main items in a marinade used to step up the appeal of broiled mackerel.

Pin Search

were used, but acknowledged some of the campus clubs could have. While engaged in a telephone conversation with a reporter, she suddenly inquired "Is it shaped like a shield, pointed at the top?"

It was, and hoping to nail down a positive identification, at least that the pin was truly associated with Corsicana High School, the pin was taen to her home for inspection. "That's it!", she exclaimed, memories rekindled by the sight. "It's the same emblem on our class rings," she recalled. Mrs. Cocke studied, reaching back into days long dimmed, and volunteered the opinion it must have been owned by a boy "as I recall most of the girls chose class rings and it seems a few of the boys took pins." She confessed she didn't know the present whereabouts of her class ring. She had given it to one of her children years ago and wasn't sure just which. She pondered, too, whatever became of her yearbook.

At this point, the search turned to the new high school west of town. At least it had been established that it was a Corsicana pin. Several who had been shown the emblem had countered "How do you know it's a Corsicana emblem, it could be Cleburne or Crockett or Cleveland—Texas or Ohio." We didn't until Mrs. Cocke clinched it.

The object in heading for high school and the office of Principal Grover Pearson was to search out old annuals. It was after office hours, and the school was being vacated by the last remnants of teaching personnel and custodial staff, but Principal Pearson entered into the search mission eagerly, his own curiosity aroused.

Through storeroom after storeroom the search continued for a 1913 annual, but none further back than the 1916 edition of "The Corsican" could be found—and for good reason it was learned when Insurance Man Gabe Goldberg was consulted. He had presented the volume to the school for its historic archives.

Goldberg was editor-in-chief of the annual and when asked something about the annual's history and possibly how many volumes had preceded it, replied "None, this was the first annual." He didn't remember CHS ever having a class pin, but he referred the reporter to someone who might know—Ivan Rosenberg, 1913 graduate.

"Sure, I remember the class pin. I've got one," reacted Rosenberg, "and if the school wants it for their collection I'll give mine to them, too."

He said he felt sure he could find it, maybe a copy of their "yearbook", and a picture of the 40th reunion of the class held in 1953. Sure enough, a short time later, he called back that he had found the pin and the re-union picture and was bringing them to The Daily Sun.

Deciding he needed help in identifying the girls in the class, Rosenberg and the reporter sallied forth to the home of a classmate, Mrs. Charles Byrd, the former Janie Mattingly.

She not only had the same picture of the 40th class reunion with the names enscribed but an original picture of the 1913 graduating class with the names of almost all its members, newspaper clippings recounting the class reunion of 1953, and a 41st class reunion held the following year.

Mrs. Byrd quickly volunteered that she and Mrs. Cocke had made it a project several years ago, when the plans were going forward for the 40th reunion, to assemble all possible memorabilia with a view of presenting it to the school for its archives.

A faded news clipping from The Daily Sun on the class reunion revealed from reminiscenes of those attending that the graduating class was the "last to graduate from the stage of the Merchants' Opera House before it burned later in 1913."

In another segment, the news story relates that the 48 students in the 1913 graduating class made up the largest class of graduates in CHS up to that year.

The CHS of 1913 was located on the site now occupied by the old Drane Middle School, best West 4th and 5th Ave. This building now is Sam Houston School. The "new" Corsicana High School was built in 1923 on S. 18th St. at W. Collin. This building became the home of Drane Middle School this past year when the modern $2-million-dollar-plus educational complex was opened.

Photographs furnished by Rosenberg and Mrs. Byrd are being reproduced to accompany this story.

As the two classmates stirred old memories of fond school days in the reporter's presence, they agreed "There's so few of us left, we'll probably never hold another class reunion."

And, as Rosenberg offered his class pin to the reporter to be presented to school officials along with the other pin for inclusion among many mementoes contributed by graduates down through the years, Mrs. Byrd said this journey into nostaglia would prod her and Mrs. Cocke to "follow through" with long-made plans to donate their collection of memorabilia, too, in the very near future.

The mystery remains unsolved, as to the original owner of the lost class pin, but memories of pleasant days gone by certainly were aroused. Hopefully, the proud and long history of Corsicana High School, will be the better for the search.

In Once-Busy Rice:

We Don't Talk Population, but the City's on the Upswing'

By KIT BAUMAN
Golden Circle Editor

RICE—Although the railroad that runs through the heart of town was lined with freight cars, there was no activity.

The railway station, for years one of the busiest offices in the community, is boarded up, its yard overgrown with weeds.

On the access road paralleling U.S. 45 stands one of the few survivors of this community's better days, a modern bank. A block to the west stands the original bank, its marble countertops and grill-work tellers' cages still intact. An old roll-top desk sits just inside the padlocked front door, a felt hat gathering dust on top of it.

The monotony of shuttered and padlocked stores on main street is broken only by the Post Office and a corner hardware store. A glance through grimy storefront windows reveals only emptiness and dust inside.

Yet despite its appearance, Rice is not a doomed, dying community. Its story is not unlike that of hundreds of good-sized rural towns throughout Texas that began to lose population as travel became easier in the 20s and 30s.

"It was the cars and the highways that led to this," Mrs. Viola Miles says. A lively 88-year-old woman, Mrs. Miles is considered Rice's senior citizen and its official historian.

"I can remember the day Montgomery-Wards brought the first horseless carriage to town," she said. "They had it on a railroad car parked on the siding in the middle of town. It was such a big occasion that school was let out so all of us kids could go down and see it."

As the cars and highways improved, people found it easy to shop in Corsicana, and then Dallas. Many were attracted away by better jobs. As it happened so many times before in other towns, Rice had difficulty keeping its young people at home.

"The kids haven't really changed much," Mrs. Miles said. "Bunches of wild ones would come along, we'd have trouble with them, and they'd either leave or grow up—most of them would leave, though."

Fate appears to making up to Rice, however, for the lean years in which the population figures reflected only losses. The highways that led the way out of town for so many are now leading others back.

Ronald (Bo) Cavender has been in Rice only a couple of years, moving here from Corsicana to take over the bank. He is now the mayor and obviously proud of it.

"We don't release population figures here," Cavender smiles. "We just say that the city's on the upswing, and it is."

The new postmistress, Mrs. Alice Dillard, is another "runaway" from Corsicana who finds life in Rice to her liking. Although she still lives in Corsicana, she is thinking more and more as a Rice resident.

"There may not be much happening here," she says, "and that's really what I like about it. The pace is nice and the people have been wonderful.

"By the time I head for home each afternoon, I'm almost singing."

The highway over the fields where Mrs. Miles used to walk to school continues to hum with traffic and it would be safe to guess that few of the travelers pause here. But enough are doing so and finding that they like it.

Rice is no boom town, but the population figure is inching its way back up. Mayor Cavender is happy, Mrs. Dillard concurs, and the woman who has seen most of it happen just smiles.

"I couldn't leave here," Mrs. Miles says. "The people here may not have done anything very vital to the world, but they're all important to me. They're my friends and I want to stay with them."

Plenty Room

Montgomery-Ward brought the first horseless carriage to Rice at the turn of the century when this community was still a thriving rural town. Residents here say that the automobile was responsible—along with the Depression—for the town's losses. On main street—where once stood two banks, two drug stores, several groceries and an auto dealer—only the Post Office and a hardware store remain open today. (Sun Staff Photo by Kit Bauman)

Congregation Gone

Rice's old Methodist Church still stands, the oldest building in town. With the construction of a new church, the building was turned over to the youngsters for use as a neighborhood center. The structure was declared unsafe and has not been in use for several months. (Sun Staff Photo by Kit Bauman)

Down on the Fur Farm

Time-Consuming Industry

Corsicana Couple Raises Fur Coats

By MIKE MONTFORT
Staff Associate

Chinchillas have been referred to by many as a "precious fur for a precious few." However, according to a couple of local chinchilla breeders, the R. F. LaLones of 1903 West Fith, chinchillas are "precious furs in their precious time."

The LaLones became interested in the time-consuming hobby of raising these valuable nocturnal animals by watching the documentary "time-fillers" on area television stations.

The LaLones purchased their first chinchillas in January of last year, 6 females and one male, and at the present time, only two of that herd exist.

The chinchillas are born with a full set of teeth and are able to roam around their surrounding within two hours after birth. Each chinchilla litter averages two, with gestation periods normally 111 days; thus, the chinchillas can possibly reproduce three times a year.

The LaLones maintain their "chinchilla ranch" which presently numbers 118, in a metal prefabricated building with controlled temperature and humidity. Although they keep the structure warmer during breeding periods, the temperature is sustained at a crisp 60 degrees.

The chinchillas are 'racked' on two sides of the building, with an accessable walkway to each cage to care for each animal. Female chinchillas are confined to their compartments by collars, with the males admitted by a ramp for their "visiting hours."

The chinchilla industry, according to Mrs. LaLone, is not a quick profit making business venture, because it takes time, effort, and patience to raise one elegant and evenly distributed, thickly furred creature. One must breed a top-notch animal without swirls, ("cowlicks") in their pelts. The pelts must be flawless and have the best care in order to get a reasonable price for each square inch of the animal. However, one begins to make money as he becomes more experienced in the breeding.

Much more time is required than is expected. Mrs. LaLone enters records on each animal concerning birth, sex, parents, and pedigrees in a "herd book," which is as official as a birth certificate. Besides this information guide to breeding, Mrs. LaLone keeps a "daily log" to record daily habits and events for each animal.

In 1923 the first chinchillas were brought to America from the Andes Mountain region in South America, more specifically near Peru.

The creatures required little food or vegetation. The LaLones feed their herd daily one tablespoon of prepared chinchilla pellets, one raisin, and keep their water supply available with an automatic watering system.

Each creature seems to look forward with great anticipation to Tuesdays and Fridays, which are bath days. The little animals bathe in a rectangular one-gallon can filled with pummice dust, which helps to remove moisture and oils from their fur. The squirrelish creatures scurry, roll, and tumble in their private baths, providing great enjoyment for the on-lookers.

Each ranch is given a number, or "brand", to engrave in each animal's ear. The tattoo identification includes the brand number, the year, the letter, and the number on the ranch. This is done in the animal's left ear to tell the chronological order of its birth and to identify the ranch.

The La Lones breed primarily four types of chinchillas—standards, beige, black velvets and white. Their furs, when sold, are made into coats, which normally take 120 to 150 pelts to make. No parasites can live on them because the fur is too thick, Mrs. LaLone said.

It is evident that the LaLones work hard to provide the best for their animals. Those chinchillas actually have "The Life of Riley,"—at least until their social prestige literally "goes to their head" at that one time in their lives, when they are sent off to have their furs "harvested".

NJC, Hospital to Offer Med Technician Courses

Beginning with the fall semester Navarro Junior College in cooperation with Navarro County Memorial Hospital will begin a new program that is designed to prepare medical laboratory technicians. This will be a two-year program in which the Associate of Applied Science Degree in Medical Laboratory Technology will be awarded upon successful completion of the program. Upon graduation the student will be eligible for certification with The American Medical Technologists or The American Society of Clinical Pathologists. Graduates will be prepared for immediate employment upon graduation.

Persons enrolled in the program will take biology, chemistry, English, mathematics and M.L.T. lecture courses on the campus of Navarro with M.L.T. laboratory courses being taught in the Navarro County Memorial Hospital laboratory.

The objective of the program will be to:

1. Provide the high quality instruction that is necessary to prepare the student for immediate employment as a medical laboratory technician.

2. Develop within the student the specialized skills that are required of a medical laboratory technician.

3. Train the student to actually apply the theory and skills presented to him or her.

4. Provide a type of job related training for the student.

5. Develop within the student desirable habits and attitudes toward his work.

6. Develop an understanding of good citizenship as it relates to the community, the nation, and the world.

There is a tremendous need for Medical Laboratory Technicians and by offering this new program Navarro will attempt to help provide the technician to meet the needs and to offer the opportunity for individuals to succeed in a new technical field.

Martin-Donaho Families Hold Annual Reunion

The Martin and Donaho families, descendants of George Wesley and Martha Virginia Martin and Travis and Sarah Donaho, held their second reunion June 13 in the old Pickett School which was attended by some of the older family members.

Old and new photographs of both families were on display. Floyd Knotts gave the invocation for the noon meal and Mrs. Sibyl Anderson, president, conducted the business meeting. Floyd Knotts was elected president for the coming year and his wife, Love Martin Knotts, will serve as secretary.

Gifts were presented to Mrs. Ollie Kiser who originated plans for the reunion; Mrs. Jessie Martin Langridge, oldest member present; Miss Carrie Bell Holloway who traveled the fartest distance to attend; Tracy Skinner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Skinner and great, great, great-granddaughter of the George Wesley Martins and the youngest member present; Mrs. Roy Martin, the only living son, daughter, son-in-law or daughter-in-law of the twelve children born to the George Wesley Martins.

Attending from out-of-town were: John T. Martin, Jr., Shreveport, La., Miss Carrie Bell Holloway, Plainview; Mrs. Willie Frank Holloway, Petersberg; Willie Wesley Martin, Austin; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Skinner, Killeen; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Skinner, Bryan;

And, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer W. Adams, Tulsa, Okla.; Mrs. Gladys Brown and James Childress, Fort Worth; Mrs. Clara Wilson, Grand Prairie; Mr. and Mrs. Haskel Bennett, Arlington; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Thomas, Lancaster; Mrs. Joyce Redden and Rosanne and Kurt Adams, Dallas; and Mr. and Mrs. Alton Farrish, Richards, Tex.

Present from Corsicana were: Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Martin, Charles Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Bobbie Martin, Mrs. Jessie Langridge, Mrs. Ollie Kiser, Mrs. C. L. Sprinkle, Mrs. Gracie Lee Hollingsworth, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hooker, Ralph Hooker;

Also, Mrs. Roy Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Knotts, W. C. Watson, Mrs. Mary Averitt Austin, Mrs. Mamie Williamson, Mrs. Louise Jones, Mrs. Ethel Foster, Myrtle Hutchins Foster, Mrs. Sibyl Anderson, Cindy Anderson and Mrs. Thelma Caskey.

The families voted to hold the reunion at the same location on Saturday, July 2, 1972.

Barricades Due For Highway Job

Barricades are to be set up on Corsicana streets Monday in preparation for the construction of asphaltic concrete pavement on U.S. 75 from First Avenue to I. H. 45 South and I.H. 45 from U.S. 75 north of Corsicana to U.S. 75 south.

According to A. P. Boyd of Young Brothers, Inc., contractor for the repaving, actual construction should begin July 6, continuing through Aug. 1. The firm plans to repave that portion of I.H. 45 by-passing Corsicana before starting constuction in the city.

Plans for the construction were finalized in a meeting between contractors, Texas Highway Department personnel and local law enforcement officials.

Raymond Henry, resident engineer for the highway department, said the contract amount for the project is $172,491.30.

Traffic will be handled through existing roadways at all times. One traffic lane will be closed where work is in progress. The closed lane will be effected by the use of special signs and cones for marking the lane.

NCAC Board Vacancies To Be Filled

Board positions within five of the Navarro County Action Committee's neighborhood areas are open to nomination due to vacancies or expiring terms.

Candidates interested in filing have until noon, June 26, to turn in their names to the NCAC office on E. 6th Ave. The five areas are Dawson, Blooming Grove, Southeast Corsicana (located east of Highway 75 and south of Highway 31 East), Southwest Corsicana (located west of S. 13th St. and south of Highway 31 West), and Northeast Corsicana (located east of Highway 75 and north of Highway 31 East).

Candidates must live within the area from which they file and may not be related to NCAC employes. Also ineligible are candiates who have served three consecutive terms prior to this election, unless one year has elapsed since completion of their last full term.

Polling places for the July 10 election will be posted at least one week early.

Training Lab Set by 4-H

4-H club members from Extension District IV will hold a one week Leadership Laboratory at Lake Trinidad near Athens on June 21-25, 1971. Each county in Extension District IV will send three boys and three girls to this training Lab. The purpose of this Lab is to help these 4-H members better understand their own potential and to strenghten their leadership abilities.

Navarro County is a part of this Extension District and will send Rauslyn Bowens, Connie Porter, Rebecca Watkins, Mack Boyd, Donald Lawrence and Lewis Watkins to this Lab. County Extension Agents Pat Griggs and Doug Presley will accompany these 4-H'ers to Lab.

WHO'S NEW

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy N. Smith announce the birth of a daughter, Jennifer Lucinda, on June 20. The infant weighed 7 lbs. 3 ozs. and is welcomed by a sister, Susan, and a brother, Michael.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Willett Thornton and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Smith of Mexia.

Local Resident Attends 50th Wedding Observance

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Snelgre, parents of Mrs. Roxie Snelgre Pierce, primary teacher at Abraham Lincoln Elementary School, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in Gause, Tex. June 19 with a double-ring ceremony performing by the Rev. H. Y. Bolden, pastor of the Zion Hill Baptist Church.

The couple's eight children were hosts to the many friends and relatives who attended the ceremony and dinner. The children presented an appreciation plaque to their parents.

Guests from Corsicana were the Rev. and Mrs. Paul Curry, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Wright and daughters, Alfreda, Saundra and Serena, and Mr. and Mrs. Olen Nickleberry.

A number of Corsicana friends sent gifts and food to honor the couple.

Sportsmen Meet Here On Monday

There will be a meeting on Monday evening, June 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the Flame Room of the Lone Star Gas Building.

A film will be shown ... EXHIBITION SHOOTING.

Bring your friends!

Public Affairs School Interns Busy-All Over

AUSTIN (AP)—Students in the University of Texas Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs are hard at work in a variety of federal, state and local governmental offices.

The internships are a required part of the school's program and, according to Associate Dean Alexander Clark, "are intended to provide firsthand, responsible experience in public policy making positions."

A sampling of the types of internships held by the LBJ graduate students include:

—Working on the administrative staff of U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., to develop research on the delivery of health care.

Serving on the administrative staff of U.S. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind.

Doing research related to rural electrification on the staff of Rep. J. J. Pickle, D-Tex.

—Handling general assignments in the office of the city manager of San Antonio.

—Working in the Division of Behavorial Sciences, National Academy of Sciences, on strategies for evaluating research in a number of federal agencies.

—Working in the Wisconsin Department of Administration.

—Serving as an administrative aide in the office of former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

—Under assignment of the University of Houston, studying the relationship of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to its contractors.

—Working on the staff of Gov. Preston Smith to evaluate current internship programs in councils of government and to assist in plans for developing future internships for other state governmental agencies.

TP&L Warns

Texas Power & Light Company today warned customers to beware of persons posing as TP&L employees who seek to make home electrical repairs for a fee.

Recently, customers in several sections of TP&L's service area have been bilked out of money by individuals misrepresenting themselves as TP&L "electrical inspectors."
